On February 20, 2025, Oxford Life Insurance Company (“Oxford”) was alerted by a user to suspicious activity on its IT network. Oxford immediately took measures to contain the activity and initiated incident response protocols, which included beginning an investigation with the assistance of a third-party forensic firm. This event did not involve ransomware and Oxford’s systems were not encrypted. The investigation determined that an unauthorized person accessed Oxford’s IT network for approximately one hour on February 20, 2025, and, during that time, copied some of Oxford’s files. The source of the event was a social engineering attack through which the threat actor gained access to an employee’s computer by impersonating a collections company, which resulted in unauthorized access to Oxford’s network.

Oxford reviewed the files that may have been involved, which was substantially completed on April 18, 2025. Through this review, Oxford identified files containing information belonging to certain individuals associated with Oxford, such as policyholders, claimants, and insurance agents, residing in Maine. The information involved included name and Social Security number. One individual’s driver’s license or state identification number was also included.

On May 13, 2025, Oxford sent notifications via U.S. First-Class mail to 30 Maine residents whose information was involved in accordance with Me. Rev. Stat. Tit. 10, §1348. A copy of the notification is enclosed. Oxford is offering one year of complimentary credit monitoring, fraud consultation, and identity theft restoration services through Experian to these Maine residents, and has established a dedicated, toll-free call center for individuals to call with questions.

To help prevent a similar event from occurring in the future, Oxford has implemented, and will continue to adopt, additional safeguards and technical security measures to further protect and monitor its systems. Additionally, Oxford is continuing to enhance its education and testing of employees about phishing and social engineering scams.

You can obtain information from these sources about steps an individual can take to avoid identity theft as well as information about fraud alerts and security freezes. Fraud Alerts and Credit or Security Freezes:

Fraud Alerts: There are two types of general fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft with the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years.

To place a fraud alert on your credit reports, contact one of the nationwide credit bureaus. A fraud alert is free. The credit bureau you contact must tell the other two, and all three will place an alert on their versions of your report.

For those in the military who want to protect their credit while deployed, an Active Duty Military Fraud Alert lasts for one year and can be renewed for the length of your deployment. The credit bureaus will also take you off their marketing lists for pre-screened credit card offers for two years, unless you ask them not to.

Credit or Security Freezes: You have the right to put a credit freeze, also known as a security freeze, on your credit file, free of charge, which makes it more difficult for identity thieves to open new accounts in your name. That is because most creditors need to see your credit report before they approve a new account. If they cannot see your report, they may not extend the credit.

How do I place a freeze on my credit reports? There is no fee to place or lift a security freeze. Unlike a fraud alert, you must separately place a security freeze on your credit file at each credit reporting company. For information and instructions to place a security freeze, contact each of the credit reporting agencies at the addresses below:

- Equifax Security Freeze, PO Box 105788, Atlanta, GA 30348, www.equifax.com
- Experian Security Freeze, PO Box 9554, Allen, TX 75013, www.experian.com
- TransUnion Security Freeze, PO Box 2000, Chester, PA 19016, www.transunion.com

You will need to supply your name, address, date of birth, Social Security number and other personal information.

After receiving your freeze request, each credit bureau will provide you with a unique PIN (personal identification number) or password. Keep the PIN or password in a safe place. You will need it if you choose to lift the freeze.

How do I lift a freeze? A freeze remains in place until you ask the credit bureau to temporarily lift it or remove it altogether. If the request is made online or by phone, a credit bureau must lift a freeze within one hour. If the request is made by mail, then the bureau must lift the freeze no later than three business days after getting your request.

If you opt for a temporary lift because you are applying for credit or a job, and you can find out which credit bureau the business will contact for your file, you can save some time by lifting the freeze only at that particular credit bureau. Otherwise, you need to make the request with all three credit bureaus.
